

“Interest (usury) is considered to be unacceptable because it diverts resources from the poor to the rich and diverts wealth into a few hands. Instead of a few becoming super-rich through interest, Islamic finance and its emphasis on the exchange of useful goods and services, rather than charging interest on money, leads to a fairer society.”

Mufti Barkatulla

Islamic scholar, Lloyds TSB Shariah Committee. 26 June 2007.
